HOME RULE.

Given-a dozen men all aspiring to one office, how many of the twelve are destined to disappointment? So simple a sum in subtraction can be done without the aid of a blackboard. Eleven are as certain not to get the office as one is to get it,

But there are exceptions to all rules. A dozen men may aspire to an office in the District of Columbia and the whole dozen be left.

How to overrule this exception, fairly, amicably and intelligently, so that one cut of the dozen may be honored by the Presidential choice, without incurring the factious antagonism of the eleven or proyoking a local feud that might be fatal to all, is the more important and at the same time more complicated problem, which the citizens of Washington who justly feel that they are entitled to some recognition at the hands of the Administration, should have the good sense and the sense of justice to solve in their own favor.

Why don't the candidates put their heads together and agree upon some feasible plan of action that will not only relieve the President of all nneertainty and embarrassment in the premises, but vindicate their good faith and the principle of home rule on which they jointly stand?

It is taken for granted, of course, that a man desires political preferment for the honors and emoluments which go with it -which is an entirely laudable ambitionbut the man who covets such distinction solely for personal profit, without regard to the interests or preferences of the public, and in such a sordid spirit that he would sooner let the appointment go out of the District than lose it himself, can hardly claim to be a loyal citizen. Assuming, however, that the hundred or more persons interested in the local distribution of Federal patronage are all worthy and competent, animated by honest motives and Home Rulers, in practice as well as profession, they should be ready to make any individual sacrifice and consent to any conciliatory terms, that will keep the patronage where it appropriately belongs.

If they cannot do this, they will have no cause to complain if the President looks elsewhere.

PRACTICAL REFORM. Reform, to be reform, should, of course be practical. The Civil-Service Commissioners have been subjected to considerable criticism, at different times and in various quarters, on the ground that their examinations have too strong a flavor of the school-room. It has been said that they are conducted with the apparent view of finding out what an applicant knows of matters that under no circumstances could be of any use to him, if he should receive a Government place, rather than for the purpose of ascertaining his practical adaptation to the position desired.

There is possibly some grounds for such criticism, but not a great deal, and not nearly as much as there formerly was. It will hardly be disputed that in order to learn the area and quality of a candidate's general intelligence, something more must be asked of him than questions relating exclusively to the work that will be expected of the appointee, but such interrogatories need not be obtase nor technical excepting in the cases of positions requiring special examinations, nor do they find a place in the work of the present Contmission to any very objectionable degree The questions which the Commissioners print with their annual report show that the chief object aimed at is not to confuse the applicant but to discover the bent of his mind and the assiduity with which he has devoted himself to such useful branches of knowledge as it is proper he should be acquainted with.

This is as it should be. There is nothing practical in mere pedantry.

INOFFENSIVE PARTISANS.

We can understand very readily how a postmaster whose salary never amounted to more than fifteen or twenty dollars a year could make himself exceedingly disagreeable to his neighbors and friends and the community in general, but how he could rise to the dignity of an "offensive partisant unless he had some other enpital to operate on, is not so clear.

Yet it is related of the postmaster at Berrett, Carroll County, Md., who recently resigned because of his own acknowledgment that he was an offensive partisan, that the meome of his office was only $17.36 in 1883 and probably did not exceed that sum by more than five dollars in 1884. This man may have imagined Limself an offensive partisau and possibly was so known at the cross-roads grocery. but we question the propriety of his belong so entered up on the books.

The line should be drawn somewhere or the offensiveness of partisanship will Jacoine so aftenuated and inconsequential as to afford no just ground for removal Suppose the Postmaster-General fixes the limit at $500; Republican partisans below Hait grade to be credited to the inoffen-

WATTON'S NEW VENTERE.

The Chicago Mail, a penny evening paper, which of late has been leading a precarious existence, having essayed to become an organ, and as usual in such cases making an ignondations failure of the attempt, has been bought by Mr. Frank Hatton, the late Postmaster-Gen eral, and Clinton E. Snowden, a gentle man well-known in Washington newspaper circles, and henceforth will be run under Independent Republican colors. The field for atternoon journalism of Chicago is already pretty well occupied, but in so large and progressive a city there cannot be such a thing as a journalistic monopoly of any field; and men with the experience that Hatton and Enowden have will no doubt give the News a lively toute and make a big success of their en-

Save the Manchester! Union! "The olidity of the Republican party in New Hampshire and Illinois is respectfully referred to the Democratic Administration at Washington. It means business in 1888, and if it succeeds, it will not require that charges be preferred in order to get a cross-roads Democratic postmaster out of office." Our esteemed contemporary of the Granite Hills has a way of striking from the shoulder that is highly suggestive of offensive partisanship.

GENERAL LOCAN had time to learn something about the prospective wheat crop during his late protracted association with the rural members of the Hilinois Legislature and says: "Michigan is the only State that will have a full wheat crop this year, Illinois will have 12,000,000 bushels, where she ought to have over 30,000,000. The wheat crop of the country will be short at least 180,000,000 bushels,

WE ARE not surprised at the renewed discussion which has arisen in the newspers concerning "The Nude in Art." It is subject which is certain to recur about this time of year, and its agitation naturally increases as the mercury goes up. The theme is clothed with much interest, but this is about all the clothing it was ever known to wear, especially in July and August.

THE National Republican appears this morning in a handsome new dress and with its seven columns widened out to eight. Our esteemed contemporary is to be congratulated upon these evidences of increasing prosperity. It looks as cheerful, clean and bright as through it had just secured a fresh-tot of profitable advertising contracts and taken a bath in the refreshing waters of the Potomac.

SENATOR "TIM" CAMPBELL, ex-Alderman Sheils and Justice McCarthy are all candidates for Congress in the eighth New York district, to succeed Mr. Cox. The man who can fill his place has not yet been

The Virginia Republicans propose to adopt the Blair Educational bill as their platform in the next campaign. There's millions in it.

MR. CLEVELAND'S WAY. How He Contrives to Get Through With so Much Business.

Much of the President's success in getting through with so much work lies in his systematic methods of work. The Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis News says that his every day life, both public and private, is a marvel of system and method. He has so arranged his time and his efforts that there is no clashing. He has his hours for working, clashing. He has his hours for working, and when they are over he stops work. In this way he is enabled to keep his appointments promptly and to keep himself in good working condition. He rises at a reasonably early hour and is always ready for breakfast, which is fixed for 9 o'clock. He has never missed his morning's meal nor been even late to it since he has been in the White House, and he expects the same punctuality from those who sit at the table with him. Almost immediately afterward he is ready to begin the business of the day, and, after attending to important letters or other matters which are brought to his attention, he begins to receive callers. Before 1 o'clock he has his ceive callers. Before I o'clock he has his rooms pretty well cleared, having disposed of visitors. This is about the hour when his predecessor began to receive callers. President Cleveland then goes down airs and gives audience to the general isitors who may be waiting in the East Room. At half-past 1 o'clock lunch is served, and no one afterward is admitted to his presence except by appointment. Thus he has time at his disposal to see delegations or to shut himself in his office for the consideration of important matters requiring his attention and to take his customary afternoon drive. Dinner is served promptly at 7 o'clock.

The evenings are devoted to the relaxa-tion of conversation or to the considera-tion of business, just as it happens. The above is the regular daily routine at the White House, and from it there is no deviation. As a consequence, everybody connected with the house knows just what to do and just when to do it. The Presi-dent himself has been enabled to stand the strain upon him for the past few months remarkably well. He is looking in fine condition, and seems perfectly well. Since he has been an occupant of the White House he has not been sick

It is comparatively easy to secure an au dicuce with President Cleveland. He willing to give everybody a chance. All who approach him are pleased with the cordiality and case of manner with which they are received. He is always willing to listen to what is said to him, particularly with reference to the affairs of the larly with reference to the alfairs of the house, and this is pleasant to the employes. A great deal of credit for this systematizing of affairs at the White House is due to Colonel Lamont, his private secretary, who worked minself sick in a couple of months. His ways are the President's ways, and the two understand each other perfectly.

The New Hotel Project.

A Mr. Moore of New York, representing an association of capitalists, has been here for a number of days looking over various lots in the northwest part of the town hunting for a favorable location for a first-class hotel. It is said by the corre-spondent of the New York World that this spondent of the New York work that this association is ready to invest at least two millions of dollars in this enterprise. If it is constructed in accordance with modern ideas and amanged according to the New York hotel standard it will certainly pay a very handsome percentage upon the in-vestment. There are fifty or sixty rich families that come here every winter and take furnished houses simply because there are no adequate hotel accommodations for people used to Inxurious modes of life and lavish entertaining. It is said that this new hotel association intends to put up a building which shall cover an entire block, leaving an interior comi-large enough for special entertainments, such as inauguration balls and the like.

Poetry Worth Reading.

A countryman took home with him as a momenta of his visit to the city a gilt-edged card, upon which was written a few times of poetry.

"What did you buy that for?" asked his wife; you don't care for poetry."

"I don't go much on ordinary poetry." he replied, "but this was writ by a dime museum feller, with his toes. I see him do it.—{N. Y. Sun.
